After a Decade

Celebrating clients that have been at Cummings Center for more than 10 years

When Melanie Giles, co-founder of Speech Therapy Group, started the search for office space, she hoped to stay close to her Gloucester home. She knew, however, that Gloucester wasn't a central enough location to serve a variety of patients. In 2005, she signed a lease for a 300-square-foot office and began her speech therapy practice here. Melanie was to ALS, and, according to Melanie, is the only practice on the North Shore that does speech therapy for people with Parkinson's disease.

Over the course of 12 years, Speech Therapy Group has expanded into more than 3,700 square feet and now has 10 speech pathologists and six administrative staff working out of its space. The practice works closely with a number of other medical practices at Cummings Center, including North Shore Ear, Nose & Throat.

"The work Speech Therapy Group does is truly incredible. They are a highly valued long-term client at Cummings Center. I look forward to working with Melanie and her staff for many years to come," said Cummings Center's newest account manager, Will Bernard.

nervous, but excited about what Cummings Center had to offer.

"The location has allowed me to see many patients from all over the North Shore, including Gloucester. Everything you need is here: doctors, dentists, restaurants, and so many other amenities," Melanie said.

While the practice was initially focused on children, it now serves patients of all ages, and addresses and treats a variety of disorders. "Our youngest patient was 32 weeks old, and the oldest was 106 years old," Melanie explained. The practice treats disorders ranging from autism
